Это промты на первый кадр плана. Движение камеры — проводка за чайкой в №5 и отъезд в №10 — задаётся на этапе оживления, не здесь.

Референсы: исходная картинка заказчицы плюс утверждённый кадр 1. Кадр 1 генерируется первым и дальше служит эталоном лица для всех остальных.

Солнце по крупности: на крупных планах (1, 7, 8) его в кадре нет — при наезде оно уходит за край. На дальних (2, 6) оно в кадре, далеко от героя. В №4 мы смотрим в его сторону, поэтому солнце впереди. В №9 солнце — сам предмет кадра.

The man in the attached reference images is the subject. Preserve his identity exactly. Do not redesign him, do not idealise him, do not beautify him, do not make him younger or older, do not make his face more symmetrical.

Take the following directly from the reference, unchanged:
EYES — the exact iris colour, the exact eye shape, the lid fold, the depth of the set, the spacing between the eyes, the brow shape and weight above them, and the fine lines at the outer corners. Do not change the iris colour. Do not enlarge, widen or prettify the eyes.
NOSE — the exact bridge line including its slight curvature, the exact width, the exact tip and its angle, the exact nostrils. Do not straighten or slim it.
MOUTH — the exact lip thickness and the exact ratio of upper lip to lower, the exact cupid's bow, the natural lip colour. Do not fill or redraw them.
FACE STRUCTURE — the exact cheekbone height and width, the hollow beneath them, the jaw width, the chin shape, the forehead height and the hairline.
SKIN — the exact tone and undertone, the exact degree of tan and weathering, the pore texture, every crease and fold including the forehead lines and the nasolabial folds, and the sun-redness across the cheekbones and the bridge of the nose. Keep the skin exactly as worn as it is in the reference. Do not smooth it, do not retouch it, do not remove lines, do not add makeup.
BEARD — the exact length, the exact density and where it grows and where it does not, the exact colour and the exact distribution of grey.
HAIR — the exact length, the exact wave, the exact way it is swept back and to one side, the exact base colour, the exact sun-bleached lighter strands, and the matte dry salt-air texture. No gel, no shine, no restyling.
AGE AND BUILD — exactly as in the reference.
Invent nothing about the face, the hair or the build.

WARDROBE — critical, follow exactly. He wears TWO layers and both are visible:
OUTER LAYER — a cream linen shirt that is COMPLETELY UNBUTTONED and hanging OPEN. Every button is undone from the collar down. The two front panels fall apart to the left and right, leaving a wide open gap down the centre of his chest. The collar is open and spread. Soft, visibly creased, slightly oversized fabric. The shirt must NOT be buttoned, must NOT be closed, must NOT be fastened at any point.
INNER LAYER — beneath the open shirt, an ecru cotton t-shirt with a plain round crew neckline, carrying the large round Jagannath deity print across the chest exactly as in the reference: wide circular white eyes ringed in red and black, red and charcoal forms, ochre and gold accents, in a worn faded watercolour-washed texture. Reproduce the print as it is in the reference; do not redesign it, do not invent a different design, do not add lettering. His bare chest is NOT visible; the t-shirt covers it completely.
NECKLACE — a single short strand of small round amber-brown wooden beads, snug against bare skin at the base of the throat, above the t-shirt neckline.

FRAMING AND POSE: a tight vertical close-up. The bottom edge of the frame falls at his collarbones, so the shoulders, the open shirt collar, the t-shirt neckline and the beads are in frame while the chest below is not. He is turned three-quarters toward camera-left, his gaze travelling past the lens to the horizon, never into the camera. Head upright, chin level. Expression still and inward, unperformed: neither sad nor smiling, a man thinking rather than posing. Lips slightly parted. Wind lifts a few strands of his hair across the forehead and off the temple.

LIGHT AND BACKGROUND — critical, follow exactly. This is a tight close-up, therefore THE SUN IS NOT IN THIS FRAME. The sun sits far outside the left edge of the image. Do not place a sun disc anywhere in the picture. Do not place a bright sun near his head, his cheek or his shoulder. There is no visible sun, no visible horizon line, no visible sun reflection path on the water. What remains of the sunlight: a warm orange rim along the top and left edge of his hair and along the left edge of his jaw and cheekbone; a soft warm bloom spilling in from beyond the left edge of frame; and behind him the sea and the white chalk cliffs of Seven Sisters thrown completely out of focus into a smooth wash of orange, amber and rose, with diffuse golden bokeh where the light scatters on the water. Soft warm bounce fills the shadow side of his face. No other light source.

Full-frame cinema camera, long lens, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation, background fully defocused.

Negative: sun in frame, sun disc, visible sun, sun near his face, sun beside his head, bright light source in frame, visible horizon line, sun reflection path on water, sharp background, buttoned shirt, closed shirt, fastened shirt, shirt done up, bare chest, bare skin under the shirt, no undershirt, missing t-shirt, blank t-shirt, plain t-shirt with no design, V-neck t-shirt, a different man, altered facial features, changed eye colour, changed nose, changed lip shape, smoothed skin, retouched skin, removed wrinkles, younger face, symmetrical face, restyled hair, different beard length, looking into camera, text, lettering, captions, watermark, signature, extra limbs, deformed hands, plastic skin, HDR halos, oversaturation, second sun, other people.

The two front panels fall apart to the left and right. Soft, visibly creased, slightly oversized fabric. The shirt must NOT be buttoned, must NOT be closed, must NOT be fastened at any point.

TROUSERS — light taupe-grey linen.
NECKLACE — a single short strand of small round amber-brown wooden beads at the base of the throat.

FRAMING AND SCALE: a wide vertical shot from an elevated position, the camera above the man and slightly in front of him, looking down at about thirty degrees. He is a small seated figure in the lower third of the frame, perched on the clifftop edge among low scrub, one forearm resting on a raised knee, looking out to sea. The camera is placed so his face and the line of his shoulders stay readable in profile against the grass — never the back of his head. He is no more than one eighth of the frame height.

LOCATION AND LIGHT: the clifftop at Seven Sisters, East Sussex, England, at golden hour. The full chain of white chalk cliffs runs away from him toward the upper right, each rounded headland smaller and hazier than the last, dissolving into warm atmospheric haze at the horizon, a narrow shingle beach and a thin white line of surf at their feet. Low coastal scrub, wind-flattened grass and dark green shrubs around him. The calm sea fills the left half of the frame. The sun is a low orange disc resting just above the sea on the far left, far from the man, its broken gold column crossing the water toward the bottom of the frame. The sky occupies the upper third, stratified in orange, amber and rose, scattered clouds lit along their undersides. Warm directional sunlight from the left. No other light source. Deep focus, sharp from the foreground scrub to the farthest headland.

Full-frame cinema camera, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation.

Negative: sun close to the man, sun near his head, second sun, duplicated horizon, buttoned shirt, closed shirt, bare chest, no undershirt, missing t-shirt, blank t-shirt, plain t-shirt with no design, back of the head toward camera, a different man, altered facial features, smoothed skin, younger face, restyled hair, different beard length, text, lettering, watermark, signature, extra limbs, deformed hands, plastic skin, HDR halos, oversaturation, modern buildings, boats, other people.

A vertical shot taken at water level at the foot of a white chalk cliff on the Seven Sisters coast, East Sussex, England.

The lower two thirds of the frame is the sea seen close: slow heavy swells lifting and falling, translucent green-gold at their crests, collapsing into lace-edged white foam that slides across wet shingle and a flat chalk shelf, then drains back in thin bright sheets. The upper third is the sheer white chalk wall rising straight out of the top of frame, streaked with horizontal grey flint bands, damp and dark at the base where the water reaches, dry and brilliant above.

Light: golden hour, matching the rest of this sequence exactly. The low sun strikes from the left and skims across the water, igniting every wave crest in orange and scattering broken gold through the troughs. Fine spray hangs backlit in the air above the foam. Warm orange light on the chalk, cool blue-violet in the wet shadows at the base. The sun itself is outside the frame.

No horizon, no sky, no people, no birds. Macro scale, shallow depth of field on the nearest foam, the chalk wall slightly soft behind.

Full-frame cinema camera, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation.

Negative: sun in frame, sun disc, horizon line, sky, people, boats, text, lettering, watermark, signature, plastic water, turquoise tropical water, cartoon foam, oversaturation, HDR halos.

OUTER LAYER — a cream linen shirt that is COMPLETELY UNBUTTONED and hanging OPEN, sleeves rolled to three-quarter length just below the elbow. Every button is undone from the collar down. Soft, visibly creased, slightly oversized fabric, the back and shoulder of the shirt catching the wind. The shirt must NOT be buttoned, must NOT be closed, must NOT be fastened at any point.
INNER LAYER — beneath the open shirt, an ecru cotton t-shirt with a plain round crew neckline, carrying the large round Jagannath deity print across the chest exactly as in the reference. Reproduce the print as it is; do not redesign it, do not add lettering. The print is on his chest and therefore faces away from this camera.
NECKLACE — a single short strand of small round amber-brown wooden beads at the base of the throat.

FRAMING AND POSE: a vertical over-the-shoulder shot. The camera sits close behind and slightly to the side of his right shoulder, at his seated eye level, looking past him out to sea. His shoulder and the upper part of his back occupy the lower right of the frame, slightly out of focus, with his head above it turned far enough that his profile — brow, nose, lips, the line of the beard — is clearly readable in silhouette against the bright water. This is an over-the-shoulder shot, NOT a shot of the back of his head: his profile must be visible. His gaze goes straight out to the setting sun. Lips closed, jaw relaxed.

LOCATION AND LIGHT: the clifftop at Seven Sisters, East Sussex, England, at golden hour. Beyond his shoulder the calm sea opens out and fills the upper two thirds of the frame, with the long broken column of gold glitter running from the low sun directly toward camera across the water. The sun is a low orange disc resting just above the horizon, ahead of him and well to the left of his head, never touching his silhouette. The white chalk cliffs recede along the right edge. Sky stratified in orange, amber and rose. He is strongly backlit: his profile and shoulder read as a warm dark shape with a brilliant orange rim along the nose, brow, lips and hair, while the sea beyond blazes. Soft warm bounce lifts the shadow side just enough to keep skin texture visible. Shallow depth of field: his shoulder soft, the water and sun sharp.

Full-frame cinema camera, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation.

Negative: back of the head toward camera, face not visible, sun overlapping his head, sun touching his silhouette, second sun, duplicated horizon, buttoned shirt, closed shirt, bare chest, no undershirt, missing t-shirt, a different man, altered facial features, smoothed skin, younger face, restyled hair, different beard length, text, lettering, watermark, signature, plastic skin, HDR halos, oversaturation, boats, other people.

A vertical shot out over the open sea at golden hour, off the Seven Sisters coast, East Sussex, England.

A single herring gull glides low and far out over the water, seen from the side, wings held still and flat in a long shallow glide, its underside caught by the low sun so that the white of its body glows warm against the darker sea. The bird is small in the frame, placed in the upper third and well off centre, with empty water and sky around it.

Below and behind it the sea stretches to the horizon, its surface broken into countless small facets of orange and gold where the low sun scatters across the swell. The long glitter column runs from the horizon toward the bottom of the frame. The sky above is stratified in orange, amber and rose with a few thin clouds lit along their undersides. The sun itself sits just outside the left edge of the frame.

Deep focus, long lens, slight atmospheric haze compressing the distance.

Full-frame cinema camera, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation.

Negative: sun in frame, sun disc, flock of birds, many gulls, bird close to camera, bird facing camera, people, boats, land, cliffs, text, lettering, watermark, signature, turquoise tropical water, plastic water, oversaturation, HDR halos.

TROUSERS — light taupe-grey linen.
NECKLACE — a single short strand of small round amber-brown wooden beads at the base of the throat.

FRAMING AND SCALE: a very wide vertical shot at his seated eye level, taken from some distance along the cliff. He sits near the lower right of the frame, a small figure among low coastal scrub at the cliff edge, no more than one eighth of the frame height. The sea and the enormous sky take everything else. He has lifted his face upward: chin raised, head tilted back, his gaze going up into the sky rather than out to sea. The pose reads as an appeal upward. His profile is turned three-quarters away from camera toward the sea, never the back of his head.

LOCATION AND LIGHT: the clifftop at Seven Sisters, East Sussex, England, at golden hour. The calm sea fills the middle band of the frame and runs to a clean horizon. The sun is a low orange disc resting just above the sea on the far left of the frame, very far from the man, its broken gold column crossing the water. The white chalk cliffs recede along the right edge behind him. The sky occupies more than half the frame height, stratified in deep orange near the horizon rising through amber into rose and dusty violet at the top, with long thin clouds lit along their undersides. Warm directional sunlight from the left. No other light source. Deep focus throughout.

Full-frame cinema camera, wide lens, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation.

Negative: man too large in frame, close-up, sun close to the man, sun near his head, second sun, duplicated horizon, back of the head toward camera, buttoned shirt, closed shirt, bare chest, no undershirt, missing t-shirt, blank t-shirt, a different man, altered facial features, smoothed skin, younger face, restyled hair, different beard length, text, lettering, watermark, signature, plastic skin, HDR halos, oversaturation, modern buildings, boats, other people.

INNER LAYER — beneath the open shirt, an ecru cotton t-shirt with a plain round crew neckline, carrying the large round Jagannath deity print across the chest exactly as in the reference: wide circular white eyes ringed in red and black, red and charcoal forms, ochre and gold accents, in a worn faded watercolour-washed texture. Reproduce the print as it is in the reference; do not redesign it, do not invent a different design, do not add lettering. Seen from this low angle the upper edge of the print may enter the bottom of the frame — that is correct. His bare chest is NOT visible; the t-shirt covers it completely.
NECKLACE — a single short strand of small round amber-brown wooden beads, snug against bare skin at the base of the throat.

FRAMING AND POSE: a vertical close-up from a LOW camera position, the lens below his chin looking steeply upward at him. The frame holds his head, neck and shoulders, with the open shirt collar and the top of the t-shirt entering along the bottom edge. Because the camera is low, the sky fills everything behind and around him. His chin is raised and his head tilted slightly back, his gaze going up into the sky above and past the lens, never into the camera. Lips slightly parted. The underside of his jaw and the line of his throat are prominent. Wind moves his hair back off his forehead.

LIGHT AND BACKGROUND — critical, follow exactly. This is a tight close-up, therefore THE SUN IS NOT IN THIS FRAME. The sun sits far outside the left edge of the image. Do not place a sun disc anywhere in the picture. Do not place a bright sun near his head. There is no visible sun, no visible horizon line, no sea in frame. Behind him there is only the vast sunset sky: deep orange low down behind his shoulders, rising through amber into rose and dusty violet at the top of the frame, with thin clouds lit along their undersides. Warm directional sunlight from the left rims the left edge of his jaw, cheekbone and hair in hot orange; the shadow side of his face is filled by soft warm bounce from the lit sky, keeping every pore and crease visible. No other light source.

Full-frame cinema camera, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation.

Negative: sun in frame, sun disc, visible sun, sun near his face, bright light source in frame, horizon line, sea in frame, high camera angle, eye-level camera, looking into camera, buttoned shirt, closed shirt, bare chest, no undershirt, missing t-shirt, blank t-shirt, plain t-shirt with no design, a different man, altered facial features, changed eye colour, changed nose, smoothed skin, retouched skin, removed wrinkles, younger face, symmetrical face, restyled hair, different beard length, text, lettering, watermark, signature, plastic skin, HDR halos, oversaturation, other people.

OUTER LAYER — a cream linen shirt that is COMPLETELY UNBUTTONED and hanging OPEN, sleeves rolled to three-quarter length just below the elbow. Every button is undone from the collar down. The two front panels fall apart to the left and right. The collar is open and spread. The shirt must NOT be buttoned, must NOT be closed, must NOT be fastened at any point.
INNER LAYER — beneath the open shirt, an ecru cotton t-shirt with a plain round crew neckline, carrying the large round Jagannath deity print across the chest exactly as in the reference: wide circular white eyes ringed in red and black, red and charcoal forms, ochre and gold accents, in a worn faded watercolour-washed texture. NECKLACE — a single short strand of small round amber-brown wooden beads, snug against bare skin at the base of the throat.

FRAMING AND POSE: the tightest frame of the sequence, a vertical close-up at his seated eye level, the camera almost frontal, only a few degrees off centre. The frame holds his head and shoulders; his forearms and the top of one drawn-up knee enter along the bottom edge, because he now sits in a CLOSED posture with both arms wrapped around his raised knee, hands loosely clasped, shoulders drawn slightly inward. His head is lowered and his gaze is cast DOWN, eyes lowered away from the lens, lids half closed. This is the most inward moment of the sequence: contained, unperformed, not sad and not theatrical. Lips closed or barely parted. Wind moves his hair.

LIGHT AND BACKGROUND — critical, follow exactly. This is a tight close-up, therefore THE SUN IS NOT IN THIS FRAME. The sun sits far outside the left edge of the image. Do not place a sun disc anywhere in the picture. There is no visible sun, no visible horizon line, no visible sun reflection path on the water. Behind him the sea and the white chalk cliffs of Seven Sisters are thrown completely out of focus into a smooth wash of orange, amber and rose, with diffuse golden bokeh where the light scatters on the water. Warm directional sunlight from the left rims his hair and the left edge of his cheekbone and nose; because his face is lowered, most of it falls into soft warm shadow filled by bounce from the lit sea, which keeps every pore and crease readable. No other light source.

Full-frame cinema camera, long lens, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation, background fully defocused.

КАДР 9 — телевик, солнце касается воды. 57.86–61.54 с. Вставка

Героя нет. Здесь солнце — сам предмет кадра, поэтому оно крупное и в кадре.

A vertical telephoto shot straight out to sea at the moment the sun meets the water, off the Seven Sisters coast, East Sussex, England.

The sun is a large, deep orange disc, its lower edge just touching the horizon and beginning to flatten slightly where it meets the sea. A long column of molten gold runs from it down the centre of the frame toward camera, broken into thousands of small moving facets across the swell. The water on either side of the column falls away into deeper bronze and smoky blue.

A long lens compresses the scene: the sun sits large in the upper third, the horizon is a clean hard line, and the sea fills the rest of the frame with almost no sky above. A faint band of haze softens the sun's lower edge. Thin clouds near the horizon are lit along their undersides in orange and rose.

No land, no cliffs, no people, no birds, no boats. Deep focus, slight heat shimmer along the horizon.

Full-frame cinema camera, long telephoto lens, vertical 9:16, photorealistic, cinematic colour grade, natural film grain, no stylisation.

Negative: second sun, multiple suns, sun high in the sky, small sun, people, boats, birds, land, cliffs, text, lettering, watermark, signature, lens flare artefacts, starburst, turquoise tropical water, plastic water, cartoon sun, oversaturation, HDR halos.

The man in the attached reference images is the subject. Preserve his identity exactly. Do not redesign him, do not idealise him, do not beautify him, do not make him younger or older, do not make his face more symmetrical.

Take the following directly from the reference, unchanged:
EYES — the exact iris colour, the exact eye shape, the lid fold, the depth of the set, the spacing between the eyes, the brow shape and weight above them, and the fine lines at the outer corners. Do not change the iris colour. Do not enlarge, widen or prettify the eyes.
NOSE — the exact bridge line including its slight curvature, the exact width, the exact tip and its angle, the exact nostrils. Do not straighten or slim it.
MOUTH — the exact lip thickness and the exact ratio of upper lip to lower, the exact cupid's bow, the natural lip colour. Do not fill or redraw them.
FACE STRUCTURE — the exact cheekbone height and width, the hollow beneath them, the jaw width, the chin shape, the forehead height and the hairline.
SKIN — the exact tone and undertone, the exact degree of tan and weathering, the pore texture, every crease and fold including the forehead lines and the nasolabial folds, and the sun-redness across the cheekbones and the bridge of the nose. Keep the skin exactly as worn as it is in the reference. Do not smooth it, do not retouch it, do not remove lines, do not add makeup.
BEARD — the exact length, the exact density and where it grows and where it does not, the exact colour and the exact distribution of grey.
HAIR — the exact length, the exact wave, the exact way it is swept back and to one side, the exact base colour, the exact sun-bleached lighter strands, and the matte dry salt-air texture. No gel, no shine, no restyling.
AGE AND BUILD — exactly as in the reference.
Invent nothing about the face, the hair or the build.

WARDROBE — critical, follow exactly. He wears TWO layers and both are visible:
INNER LAYER — beneath the open shirt, an ecru cotton t-shirt with a plain round crew neckline, carrying the large round Jagannath deity print across the chest exactly as in the reference: wide circular white eyes ringed in red and black, red and charcoal forms, ochre and gold accents, in a worn faded watercolour-washed texture. Reproduce the print as it is in the reference; do not redesign it, do not invent a different design, do not add lettering. His bare chest is NOT visible.
TROUSERS — light taupe-grey linen.
NECKLACE — a single short strand of small round amber-brown wooden beads at the base of the throat.

FRAMING AND POSE: a vertical medium shot from a slightly elevated position, the camera a little above his seated eye level and in front of him, angled gently down. The frame holds him from roughly the knees up, seated at the cliff edge among low coastal scrub, one forearm resting on a raised knee in the open posture of the reference. He occupies about half the frame height, placed slightly right of centre, with sea and sky filling the space to his left and above him. He has returned his gaze outward, looking away past the lens toward the sea and the horizon. Head upright, expression settled and quiet. Wind moves his hair and the open panels of his shirt. This frame is the beginning of a backward pull-away, so leave generous empty space around him on all sides.

LOCATION AND LIGHT: the clifftop at Seven Sisters, East Sussex, England, at golden hour. Behind and to his right the chain of white chalk cliffs recedes toward the horizon. The calm sea fills the left of the frame with the broken gold glitter column crossing it. The sun sits low, outside the left edge of this frame, close enough that its light floods in from the left but its disc is not visible. Sky stratified in orange, amber and rose. Warm directional sunlight from the left rims his hair, shoulder and the open shirt; soft warm bounce fills the shadows. Medium focus depth: he is sharp, the farthest headlands soften into haze.

Negative: sun disc in frame, sun near his head, second sun, duplicated horizon, tight close-up, man filling the frame, no space around the subject, back of the head toward camera, looking into camera, buttoned shirt, closed shirt, bare chest, no undershirt, missing t-shirt, blank t-shirt, a different man, altered facial features, smoothed skin, younger face, restyled hair, different beard length, text, lettering, watermark, signature, plastic skin, HDR halos, oversaturation, modern buildings, boats, other people.

Порядок генерации

1. Кадр 1 первым, с референсом заказчицы. Отбирать, пока лицо не совпадёт — это эталон на весь клип.
2. Утверждённый кадр 1 идёт референсом во все остальные планы с героем: 2, 4, 6, 7, 8, 10.
3. Вставки 3, 5, 9 генерируются независимо, героя в них нет. Требование одно — тот же закат и та же цветовая температура.

Чеклист отбраковки

Не принимать, если относительно референса изменилось: цвет радужки, разрез или посадка глаз; переносица, ширина или кончик носа; соотношение губ; скулы, челюсть, подбородок; гладкость кожи, пропавшие морщины или покраснения; длина, плотность или седина бороды; длина, волна, пробор, цвет или выгоревшие пряди волос; возраст на вид.

Отдельно по этому клипу: застёгнутая рубашка, отсутствующая или пустая футболка, солнце рядом с лицом на крупных планах.
